Autumn Equinox 2024

SUNDAY 22 SEPTEMBER AT 12:44 GMT (13:44 BST)

Once again we've journeyed on from the Summer Solstice in June to arrive at the Autumn Equinox.

Meteorological Autumn begins on 1 September, but the Autumn Equinox is the first day of Astronomical Autumn and this transitional point is a key stage between the seasons of Autumn and Winter.

As our Earth travels around the Sun its elliptical orbit brings us to the point in the year where both northern and southern hemispheres are illuminated equally by the sun, giving us equal hours of daytime and night-time, hence 'equinox'.

We'll continue to lose 2 minutes of daylight each day as we travel on towards the Winter Solstice on Saturday 21 December 2024, at 09:21 GMT and the shortest day of the year.

The Harvest Moon is the full moon nearest to the autumnal equinox and will be on 18 September this year. It was said that the light from this moon provided farmers and farm workers with extra light to enable them to work late into the night around this time and harvest the crops, and no doubt they still take advantage of this.

The Autumnal Equinox also provides us with an increased chance of being able see the spectacular Aurora Borealis displays, or Northern Lights, that can occur In the higher latitudes of the northern hemisphere due to increased geomagnetic activities around this time.

The Lord's Prayer - Traditional

Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed by thy name;
thy kingdom come, thy will be done, on earth as it is in heaven.

Give us this day our daily bread;

and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us.

And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil.

For thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever.

Amen.

The 5-Finger Prayer

Thumb: Pray for those closest to you: your family and friends.

Pointer finger: Pray for those who point you in the right direction: your teachers, and other leaders in your life. Pray for wisdom and support.

Middle finger (tallest): Pray for those that lead us: those in government, in business, in church leadership. Pray for guidance and wisdom.

Ring finger (weakest): Pray for those who are poor, sick, in pain, in trouble: those most in need.

Pinkie finger (smallest): Pray for yourself and your own needs.

Keats called autumn the 'Season of mists and mellow fruitfulness', and it's this season that we remember for the harvest and harvest festivals along with the temperature cooling and the nights beginning to "draw in".

The deciduous trees prepare for winter as the chemical chlorophyll in their leaves, which has made them green, declines to allow the other chemicals to become more prominent and so display a kaleidoscope of reds, yellows and ambers before the leaves fall. (Did you know that some of the chemicals responsible for this change in colour are the same ones that give carrots (beta-carotenes) and egg yolks (luteins) their colours?)

The word "fall" was actually a common term in England until around the 17th century, deriving from the shortening of the phrase "fall of the leaf" and may explain why Americans use this word to describe the Autumn season as their English ancestors took it with them when emigrating to those shores.

The word "Autumn" came into use here around the 18th century, deriving from the French term Automne, and one reason for its use may have been when the upper-classes of English society wanted to adopt a more refined vocabulary to separate them from the lower and working class population.

According to Greek mythology, autumn began after Hades abducted Persephone to be the Queen of the Underworld. Her mother was Demeter, goddess of the harvest, and in her distress caused all the crops on Earth to die until her daughter was allowed to return, marking spring.

In conclusion, it's September and Autumn is here... enjoy the season!

Linda G.

Michaelmas is celebrated on 29 September, traditionally the last day of the year's harvest season, and in medieval times the day used by farmers to mark the changing of the seasons.

Coventry Cathedral's "St Michael's Victory over the Devil" by Epstein

It's also the time of year that darker nights and colder days begin - winter is coming - and people believed negative forces were stronger in the darkness and that they would need stronger defences to protect them during the later months of the year, so the Michaelmas celebrations are associated with encouraging protection during the dark of the months ahead.

Michaelmas is also one of the four 'quarter days' of the year, the others being Lady Day on 25 March, Midsummer on 24 June, and Christmas on 25 December.

Being close to the solstices or equinoxes these days are three months apart and were the four days of the year when servants would be hired, rents becoming due or new leases started.

It is also the festival of Michael and All Angels. Michael is one of the principal angelic warriors, the protector against the dark of the night, and the Archangel who fought against Satan and his evil angels, hurling Lucifer (the devil / Satan) down from Heaven for his treachery.

Rev 12:7-9 7 Then war broke out in heaven. Michael and his angels fought against the dragon, and the dragon and his angels fought back. 8 But he was not strong enough, and they lost their place in heaven. 9 The great dragon was hurled down - that ancient serpent called the devil, or Satan, who leads the whole world astray. He was hurled to the earth, and his angels with him. (NRSV)

The Bible mentions many angels, but only four are called by name: Gabriel, Uriel, Raphael and Michael.

Archangel Michael leads and supervises the other archangels. He is a warrior and the powerful agent of God who wards off evil from God's people and delivers peace to them at the end of their life on earth.

According to English folklore we shouldn't eat blackberries after Michaelmas Day because the devil landed in a prickly bramble bush after being thrown out of Heaven, and in his annoyance scorched the fruit with his fiery breath as well as stamping and spitting on the fruit and cursing it.

The story continues by telling us that this curse is renewed each year and it's considered to be very unlucky to pick blackberries after Michaelmas.

A Message from Bishop Jan
Dean Designate of Lichfield Cathedral

I can thrill to have been appointed as the next Dean of Lichfield – and indeed, the first female Dean in the Cathedral's 1300 year history. Lichfield Cathedral is a very special place. Visitors and pilgrims are first greeted by the magnificent west front of the Cathedral, with its array of statues with Biblical figures and royalty alike peering down at them, and the unique three spires pointing them heavenwards. When they enter the Cathedral, their first reaction is often 'wow!' It truly is a beautiful Cathedral, especially when the sun is streaming through the stained glass. I'm so other reminded of the words from Genesis Chapter 28: 'How awesome is this place! This is none other than the house of God, and this is the gate of heaven.' By the time that visitors and pilgrims have made their way to the lady Chapel and the Shrine of St Chad at the far east end of the Cathedral, they have 'sifted in' and so it is no surprise that the area in which the Shrine is situated is the most prepared part of the Cathedral. It's also where we hold services of prayer for the healing and wholeness, and where, on the day that I was announced as the next Dean of Lichfield, the Bishop of Lichfield, Chad's successor, prayed for me. I'm much looking forward, in my new role, to see the Chad family across the world grow in bonds of fellowship and friendship. If you have never been to Lichfield Cathedral, we hope that a pilgrimage here might be possible for you one day. It'd be time to greet you. And we're grateful to Peter Harris for his work in bringing together all those of us for whom Chad is an important part of our heritage. It's not for nothing that he was awarded a Chad Medal by Bishop Michael on St Chad's day this year.

We do hope that we may see you soon, and until then, in the words of our Cathedral motto – Invari Deo et Leone – Serve God. And be joyful!

St Chad Icon
St. Chad's Episcopal Church,
Albuquerque, New Mexico

A new icon of St Chad was presented to the congregation and blessed on 11 February 2024. It was an important occasion for the church which is celebrating its 150th anniversary this year. The icon is the work of iconographer Patricia Coffey of Albuquerque, New Mexico, USA. Patricia used egg tempera for her medium. Her base consisted of equal parts egg yolk, white wine and water, to which dried pigments were added. Gold leaf was applied to the board before the colour was added. The icon measures approximately 61 centimetres wide and 91 centimetres tall.

Children from the Sunday School classes were invited to participate in the ceremony by making their own icons of St. Chad. They assembled at the front of the church with their crayon-coloured icons to have them blessed also. The presentation was part of an early celebration of St. Chad's Feast Day.

A VIEW BEHIND BARS - ALL IN A DAY'S WORK

Rio was tracked down in Delta wing after his escape attempt. It had all come to a sorry end when he was mobbed by a magpie. He was escorted back to the Aspire unit and was permitted to share a cell with Andrew.

I should mention that Rio is a budgie and Andrew is one of several men who have adopted the budgies bred by Frank, and is regularly seen walking around like Long John Silver with Rio apparently glued to his shoulder. Except that afternoon. It livened things up for a while.

Things were livened up in a rather different way a few weeks back when a parcel arrived in the Reception unit. It appeared innocuous until the contents of the 'food cans' were inspected and found to be raw drugs, destined for a particular prisoner, who would, it was thought, water them down, impregnate paper with them and make thousands from selling them to the most vulnerable.

The sophisticated replica packaging, letter purporting to be from another prison and remarkable canning production were, fortunately, still suspicious enough to have everyone stop before it went further. Several hours, fire engines, police disposal experts and ambulances later, the drugs were removed safely but the Reception was closed down for fear of contamination for the next few days.

All in a day's work?

All in a day's work is a bit more stressful and energetic for some than others. In my half hour slot in the staff gym over lunch one day, I couldn't help but smile at Natasha. She is someone who I've hardly heard speak. She 'glides' rather than walks through the prison. I wish I could glide sometimes.

Sporting her designer jogging bottoms and top which looked far too warm for the weather and for exercise, I noticed the logo down her leg reading 'Sweat-sport style'. As she walked on the treadmill at maybe one mile per hour at a push, I felt that perhaps she was not aptly dressed if she was aiming for either the 'sweat;' or the 'sport'. Perhaps the 'style' was what she was planning to demonstrate. I pedalled on, getting redder and hotter and definitely more sweat than style was emanating from my corner of the room.

Later, I listened to the tale of Sam's work life. He had been a roofer, from a decent family, who didn't earn a lot but taught him good morals. Sam had gone to church with a friend when he was young and ended up being a mentor to a youth group in due course.

Something went wrong with a friend and he drifted away from church. Still, he married (young) and maintained his honest profession. He has two children. They lived well enough.

Then Sam met Callum. And life took a turn downwards. Callum had had enough of mending roofs the honest way and having to get up every morning to get a wage. They would work together, he said. For a while it went well. Then Callum taught Sam how to persuade vulnerable homeowners that they had damage to their roofs. They would go up to take a look, tell them about the large amount of repair work needed, and carry out a quick patch, before presenting a huge bill.

Most of us wouldn't sprint up a ladder to check. So the money just rolled in.

Sam knew it was badly wrong and getting him in deep. He tried to stop but that didn't work. Callum would lose income if he didn't have his accomplice with him. If Sam hadn't charged enough for a job, he would be physically beaten and threatened.

It didn't last. The police caught up with them. The legal representative told Sam that he could 'get him off' with no sentence and perhaps some community work and a fine, given what tip offs they'd been given about Callum. Sam refused. He would be in danger if Callum took the whole brunt of the sentencing. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced.

As he was taken down, Sam said, he cried for 'joy' - yes, really. Taken to a prison cell, he felt free - from the threats, the coercion, the violence, the fear and the wrongdoing. He believes that there will be an exclusion zone around his family and his own home when he is released and that Callum will be in prison for a long time.

Freedom - not always what you imagine it to be.

SCHOOL UNIFORMS

'Uniform For All' is a community uniform recycling project, set up with the aim of helping parents who are struggling to afford school uniform.

However, we now also see it as a way to help recycle and also try and protect the environment from wearable clothing being taken to landfill.

If you know of anyone who would benefit from this scheme, there is more information via their Facebook page: <https://m.facebook.com/Uniform4A/>

We have, and also need, used school uniform items such as blazers, skirts, trousers, shirts, t-shirts, ties, sportswear, coats, shoes and bags. The new school year is here and we are asking if you would please consider donating any good quality, reusable items of school uniform for any school across the borough. The project has already helped many families in the borough and distributed 1,000s of school uniform items to those in need.
